

Products Liability

The products liability attorneys at Galloway represent some of the largest manufacturers and distributors of products, devices, and equipment in the world. Typically, the underlying issues are legally and scientifically complex, and the financial stakes are high.

When broadly marketed products are involved, however, there is an additional challenge that raises the stakes even further. With thousands of similar products in use, each case has the potential to set a dangerous precedent, while also causing enormous exposure. And our attorneys understand that.

We offer clients the ability to do more than just master the legal and technical issues in the cases. Our aggressive approach to case management gives clients the ability to resolve cases more quickly, while our extensive trial background allows clients more options to pursue a favorable resolution or bring complex cases to trial when warranted.
