ABOUT CATHERINE

Passionate about her legal practice and the way she goes above and beyond, Catherine Grimley prioritizes providing the highest quality service for her clients. She works closely with her clients to truly understand their needs as a trusted and strategic partner to achieving their business and legal goals. Catherine maintains open and honest communication at every stage of a matter.

Catherine focuses her practice on premises liability, personal injury, construction defect, property damage, and maritime litigation. She began her interest in the law as an intern in Galloway's Pensacola office as a high school student. Catherine brought a keen attention to detail and meticulous research as a law clerk and as Editor-in-Chief of the Florida Entertainment and Sports Review during law school. She now brings those skills and experience to her representation.

A triplet whose sister practices in Galloway's Tampa office, Catherine was born in New Orleans and raised in Pensacola, Florida. Prior to college and law school, she trained to be a professional ballet dancer, so she takes ballet classes, attends performances, and enjoys live music in her free time.
