ABOUT DAVID

Dedicated to providing effective and efficient representation for his clients, David Dennenberg utilizes his litigation experience to develop a tailored approach to each of his cases in order to implement the best possible strategy for the given lawsuit. David works closely with his clients to prioritize their needs and expectations in litigation, ensuring regular communication throughout the process and delivering favorable results.

David's practice focuses primarily on general civil litigation, including third-party insurance defense dealing with personal injury, premises liability, motor vehicle accident cases. David also has experience handling contract, construction, and products liability lawsuits.

A native Houstonian, David is an avid fan of the Houston Astros, and when not in the office, enjoys playing golf, attending the theater, and reading historical non-fiction.
