ABOUT JOHN

John Lovell goes the extra mile to achieve success for his clients. He examines his cases from all angles to uncover and address any potential flaws. John approaches his clients' matters with empathy, sensitivity, and respect. He partners with his clients to understand their business objectives, then works diligently to provide outstanding and value-driven representation.

John's experience covers all aspects of maritime law, including cargo contamination claims, personal injury cases involving seamen and longshoremen, charter party disputes, and environmental regulations. Additionally, his practice includes commercial litigation, insurance defense and coverage.

John was born and raised in a small town in Young County, Texas. When not practicing law, he channels his competitiveness into training for and competing in Strongman competitions and the Highland Games. John also enjoys spending time with his cat, Luna, and watching Houston Astros baseball.
