ABOUT JOHN

John Bickett is a Houston-based litigator who represents insurers, employers, and businesses in complex matters involving insurance defense, construction defect, and premises liability. He handles claims from pre-suit through litigation, partnering with clients to evaluate risk, develop effective legal strategies, and resolve disputes in a way that aligns with their business objectives.

John has a wide range of practical legal experience, including workers' compensation, government contracts, and advising corporate in-house counsel on litigation and compliance issues. He has additional experience handling workers' compensation litigation and Defense Base Act claims before the U.S. Department of Labor Office of Administrative Law Judges. This background allows him to navigate matters that involve overlapping legal and regulatory considerations.

Born and raised in Houston, John has a strong interest in air and space law, particularly the regulation of commercial space activity. Outside of his practice, he enjoys hiking, golf, and boxing.
