ABOUT RACHEL

With a deep knowledge and appreciation for small and large businesses, Rachel Story understands the legal needs and challenges of businesses and entrepreneurs, partnering with them to achieve their goals. She gained experience in both defense and plaintiff's firms, giving her a distinctive perspective and instilling in her the value of finding swift and amicable resolutions for her clients.

While attending undergraduate school and law school, Rachel began work with the San Diego County District Attorney's office, then proceeded to law firms specializing in class actions, property law, employment law, labor law, workers' compensation, injury law, and construction litigation. She now focuses her result driven representation on construction defect and personal injury litigation. Detail oriented and meticulous with legal research, Rachel creates lasting and professional relationships with clients through open and honest communication at all stages of a matter.

After graduating from law school in San Diego, Rachel relocated to Florida to begin her legal career. Outside of the office, she enjoys outdoor activities and cooking with her friends and family.
